Texarkana Here on Friday With Light and Speedy Eleven

Border City Team Rated Equal to El Dorado by Coach Hammons

A PASSING ATTACK

Martin Has Led Visitors to Four Victories, Losing Only to Camden

An old football rivalry will be renewed when the Razorbacks of Texarkana come here Friday night to battle Coach Foy Hammons' Bobcats.

The two teams have met annually for years. Last season the Bobcats won over the Porkers on their own field, 20 to 0.

The 1932 game was played here, ending in a 7-7 tie after the Bobcats marched 65 yards for a touchdown in the final two minutes of the game.

Under a new coach this year the Porkers look impressive. Off to a ferocious start by winning four straight games, the Razorbacks took their first drubbing last week by bowing to the Panthers at Camden.

The Bobcats, after faltering in a 7-10 victory over Hamburg in the season's opener, have dropped two and won two in a hard competition against outstanding state teams.

Although they will be outwitted, the Porkers will come here with a deceptive and dangerous passing attack to use against the locals. Martin, half, is the big gun in the Razorback offense. He stands over 6 feet and weighs 175 pounds.

Coach Foy Hammons has the Texarkana team sized up as every bit as strong as El Dorado.

"Texarkana has been under rated this year. They're dangerous. The game Friday as I see it, has every mark of a tough battle," the Coach declared.

Quibble Cut Short by Supreme Court

Technical Fight Over Salary Act Title Is Quickly Decided

LITTLE ROCK.—A decision which lawyers said should clarify almost all issues involving submission of initiated county measures in general elections was handed down by the Arkansas Supreme Court Monday in affirming a ruling of Independence Chancery Court which directed Independence county officials to place an initiated act on the ballot there.

The Independence county case dealt with almost every angle of the ballot title question, and the court held that a ballot title on an initiated act, if it identifies the proposed act and shall fairly allege the general purposes thereof, is sufficient. Suit had been filed by Dene H. Coleman of Batesville and others to prevent certification of the salary act in Independence county.

Cubert L. Pearce, Searcy attorney, who has been a leader in the county salary act movement, said that this decision will affect every salary act proposed now and in the future, and that it will remove many of the obstacles placed in the way of the act.

"This ballot title question has been raised many times," Mr. Pearce said, "and the case involved here contained an attack from almost every possible point. It seems to me that the Supreme court has cleared the way completely and established rules which will go far toward simplifying the local use of the initiative and referendum amendment."

"It is possible that this decision also will prevent a recurrence of the trouble which often arises over ballot titles in measures proposed for state adoption at the general elections. This is an important interpretation of the initiative and referendum amendment."

The Independence county act provided for a custodian of public buildings, separation of the offices of sheriff and collector, leaving the sheriff on a fee basis, and providing for purchase of supplies on bids. The court held that these features did not have to be included in the ballot title.

Petitions for the act were presented to the Independence county clerk, who held the petitions insufficient and defective. The county judge later held the petitions in order and directed the clerk to certify the act.

Suit was filed against the judge and Independence Chancery Court upheld the judge and directed certification of the act. The Supreme Court affirmed the Chancery Court.

Floyd's Body to Be Sent Back to Home in Oklahoma

His Patent-Leather Hair Is Slicked Down, Even in Death

WAS SHOT IN BACK

Public Enemy No. 1 Slain as He Ran From Officers in Ohio

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio.—(AP)—Charles Arthur (Pretty Boy) Floyd, terror of the Oklahoma badlands, lay on an undertaker's slab here Tuesday in expiration of 10 years of crime.

Offered to Surrender
WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The Washington Star said Tuesday that Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd a few weeks ago made to the Department of Justice the fourth of a series of proposals to surrender if he were promised immunity from execution. The Star said all overtures, which were made through friends of Floyd, were rejected.

His black, patent-leather hair, slicked down meticulously even in death, accentuated the pale of his face.

The braggart, sought for the Kansas City union station massacre of a year ago, bore the marks of four bullets, fired at his back.

The desperado listed as Public Enemy No. 1 since Dillinger's death, was killed on a farm near here late Monday.

Floyd's body is to be sent to his home in Sallisaw, Okla.

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio.—The Department of Justice caught up with Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, violent criminal of the Ozarks, near here Monday and the outlaw fell dying beneath a hail of rifle, pistol and machine gun bullets.

Federal agents and police came upon Floyd at a lonely farm seven miles north of this city, in a section of rugged country. The desperado started running but 50 or more shots rang out and he fell mortally wounded, unable to use either of the two automatic pistols he was carrying.

The officers, including four Department of Justice men and four East Liverpool policemen, approached his prostrate form.

"Who the hell tipped you?" demanded Floyd as they surrounded him. Then he inquired, "Where is Eddie?" Apparently he referred to Adam Dietrich, captured Saturday near Wellsville, O., when he and Floyd engaged other officers in a gun battle.

"I am Floyd."

Just before he died, Floyd said to Melvin Purvis, head of the Justice Department's Bureau of Investigation in Chicago, "I am Floyd." It was apparent that Floyd knew he was dying.

Police Chief Hugh J. McDermott, of East Liverpool, who participated in the final run-down of the criminal, said Floyd was wounded at least eight times and possibly 20 by the officers' guns.

Floyd died about 15 minutes after he was shot, while officers were carrying him to a nearby road where they had an automobile waiting to take him to a hospital.

At the time he was slain, he was the principal figure in a nation-wide search, being sought as the trigger-man in the Kansas City union station machine gun massacre in which five men were shot to death in June 1933.

Dillinger's Nemesis
The officers who finally caught up with him were led by Purvis, the same federal operative who tracked down the notorious John Dillinger.

When the officers came upon Pretty Boy, he was talking to S. L. Dyke, a farm hand, employed by Mrs. Ellen Conkle, endeavoring to persuade him to take him to Youngstown where he thought he might find refuge.

As the officers approached, Floyd hid under a corncrib, but changed his mind at the last minute and started running for an automobile. Then he turned and ran across a pasture toward a wooded ridge.

Purvis shouted a command to halt, but Floyd paid no heed.

The officers then pointed their guns and fired a volley. Floyd continued, however, to run until additional bullets struck him.

Purvis hurried to the prostrate form. Some of Floyd's final words were heard by several of the officers, but some were heard only by the Department of Justice leader, and these Purvis refused to reveal.

Later, Floyd's body was brought to a mortuary here. The body hardly had arrived before a crowd of at least 500 persons collected outside.

Floyd had only $120 in his pockets.

CHICAGO.—(AP)—The death of Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd Monday again emphasized the death trail of the desperados and the effectiveness of federal and police drives in the last year to eradicate gangdom. At large remain only John Hamilton and

Highlights of Pretty Boy Floyd's Career

Here is the life of crime of Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd in pictures.
1.—Raised on a farm near Sallisaw, Okla., Floyd early became known as a "bad boy." His first major step in crime was at 13, when he robbed a postoffice of $350 in pennies.
2.—In 1925 "Pretty Boy" was captured in a St. Louis payroll robbery and served four years. In 1930, captured at Akron, O., he escaped by leaping from a speeding train.
3.—A year later two police informers were found slain in a Kansas City rooming house. Floyd was sought with their wives. Two weeks later in Bowling Green, Ky., Floyd, a companion and two women shot it out with police. A policeman and Floyd's companion were killed.
4.—Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd, sketched from a recent picture. He now is 29. He is known to have killed at least ten men and is suspected of many other murders. Known as the "phantom bandit" he long has been a terror in the southwest.

5.—After the Kentucky killings, Floyd again was traced to Kansas City. Two federal operatives hid in his room, met him with leveled guns. But Floyd shot one to death, wounded the other. Making his escape he kidnapped his former wife at Coffeyville, Kas.
6.—Once Floyd visited his wife and 10-year-old son at her father's home near Tulsa. Officers in ambush opened fire as Floyd drove up. "Pretty Boy" returned the fire, killed the sheriff.
7.—After a string of bank robberies in the southwest, Floyd dropped from sight. He is suspected of leading the recent massacre of four officers and a convict in Kansas City. A picture of Floyd was identified by a bystander as that of one of the machine gunners. U. S. operatives renewed their hunt.
8.—Shortly after the Kansas City massacre, "Pretty Boy" abducted a Missouri sheriff, took him for a 500-mile ride. A recent exploit was the kidnapping of an elderly man and wife near Tulsa. Floyd bragged to his victims of his adventures, then took their car and $9.

Englishmen Take Australian Race

Scott and Black Cover 11,300 Miles From London in 3 Days

MELBOURNE, Australia.—(AP)—Two exhausted Englishmen landed their monoplane here Tuesday to end one of the most astounding flights in history.

Charles W. A. Scott and his partner, Tom Campbell Black, won the $50,000 speed race from London to Melbourne and in so doing set a new record for long-distance flights. They made the 11,300-mile stretch in 70 hours 59 minutes 50 seconds.

In the meantime, Permentier and Moll, the Dutch entry, who were lost in a rainstorm for hours, landed safely Tuesday at Albany, 200 miles north-east of here. The Dutchmen, flying an American Douglas plane, were generally conceded second place in the race.

Turner and Pangborn, the American entry, are holding third place.

Englishmen Win

MELBOURNE, Australia.—(AP)—C. W. A. Scott and Campbell Black, Englishmen, Tuesday won the 11,300-mile London to Melbourne air race, landing at the Flemington race course here ahead of all competitors.

The fliers, who reached Melbourne from London in less than three days, traveled the last lap from Charleville with a faulty motor.

But they nursed it along, after hasty repairs at Charleville, and made the 787-mile lap in fast time to capture the $50,000 first prize.

Preliminary calculation indicated that Scott had covered the distance from Mildenhall airbase, England, in two days, 22 hours and 25 minutes. The calculations indicated that in going half around the world the aviators had maintained the amazing speed of about 170 miles an hour.

Burly Scott, well known to Australians, and his dapper co-pilot (unbowed from their plane extremely weary after an amazing flight in which they sent many air records toppling).

Scott said he and his companion had slept only about two hours since they left England.

The previous record for a flight from England to Australia was six days, 17 hours and 45 minutes. Thousands of Australians, who had thronged the race course since noon, were on hand to see the red De Havilland.

C. F. Erwin Files for County Judge

Is First Republican to Offer in Hempstead Co. in Many Years

C. F. Erwin has filed as a candidate for county and probate judge of Hempstead county in the November 6th general election on the Republican ticket.

He will oppose Judge H. M. Stephenson, incumbent and Democratic nominee. With his entrance into the campaign he will be the first man to offer for county judge on the Republican ticket in Hempstead county in many years.

A period of 44 years has elapsed since the office has been filled by a Republican. The late James M. Haneagan, who was a leader in the Republican party during his day, was the last Republican to hold this office.

He served two terms—1886 to 1890—and since that time the office of county judge has been filled successively by Democratic aspirants.

Beg Pardon

The paper must apologize to the many persons who went out to the Carl L. Reece Floral Farms to see the Mums in bloom over the week-end. We erroneously stated that they were now in full bloom, while in reality they are just starting to bloom.

Reece called the error to our attention and asked that we assure those who went out to his place, that he was not pulling an advertising trick. He believes that the blossoms should be fully opened by this week-end and invites the public to come out to see the display.

Bulletins

ARIZONA, Ark.—(AP)—Ira E. Moore, 73, planter and large landowner, gunner, merchant and banker, and widely influential in affairs of south Arkansas, died at his home here Tuesday. He had been in ill health about two weeks. He was rated as one of the largest landowners in the state. Included among the survivors is Mrs. W. E. Clark, of El Dorado.

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—(AP)—Mrs. Frances Robinson, 23, entered a formal plea of not guilty Tuesday to the kidnapping of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll and tentative plans were made to try her in federal court here October 29. The United States district attorney told the court he would like to start the trial on that date if he could bring Thomas H. Robinson, Sr., here to try him at the same time. Meanwhile, the search continued for Thomas Robinson, Jr., named as the actual abductor of Mrs. Stoll.

Leave Detroit Airport
DETROIT, Mich.—(AP)—Professor Juan Piccard and his wife Jeannette, took off from the Ford airport early Tuesday on their balloon ascension into the stratosphere.

The balloon gained altitude slowly, but within 40 minutes the Piccards reported they were a mile and a half in the air and that everything was going well.

The takeoff was delayed nearly two hours as the crew struggled to pull down a flap which was caught in the bag by the vacuum created during the inflating of the balloon.

Later Mrs. Piccard radioed that they were over Norwalk, Ohio, and about a mile and half in the air.

K. C. Massacre Is Still a Mystery

Principals Are Dead—But U. S. Wants to Know Where Tips Came From

KANSAS CITY.—(AP)—The plot of a gangster to free his friend in crime from arresting officers exploded here June 17, 1933, with a detonation heard in every police department of the nation.

Its aftermath Monday involved: The slaying of Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, outlaw-killer of Oklahoma's Coudersville, near East Liverpool, Ohio.

Detention of Adam Richetti, bank robber and right hand man of Floyd, in jail at Wellsville.

The opening here of a federal grand jury investigation into the machine gun slayings of five men at the Union station plaza here that fatal June 17.

From that gangster plot have arisen questions which officers still are seeking to answer. Those questions include:

Was there a link between crime and politics in Kansas City?

Was there a connection to be found in the Union station slayings and the gangster slaying of a powerful Kan-

Wife in Balloon, Piccard Jumps Out

Here's a Brand New Ending for the Stratosphere Flight Book

CADIZ, Ohio.—(AP)—The Piccard stratosphere balloon landed shortly before 3 p. m. Tuesday near Pike Peak schoolhouse, several miles west of here.

Dr. Joan Piccard, scientist who was making the flight with his wife, Jeannette, was reported by farmers to have landed in a parachute.

Why he jumped was not determined.

Chapman Is to Be Tried Wednesday

Bank Robber Uncertain How He Will Plead—His Pals in Pen

CAMDEN, Ark.—Pleading not guilty to charges of robbery and burglary in connection with the hold-up of the Citizens Bank & Trust Co. here at noon June 22, 1933, Charles Chapman, 38, former prosperous highway contractor, appeared before Judge L. S. Britt Monday and his case was set for Wednesday.

"I don't know, Judge, give me a short time to think," Chapman answered Judge Britt when asked how he wanted to plead to these charges. Judge Britt entered a plea of not guilty.

Chapman seemed nervous. He suffered a deep cut on his forehead in

RECESS, TO PARADE

National Convention Gets Under Way in Southern Florida City

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—After a two-hour debate the sub-committee on adjusted compensation of the American Legion reported Tuesday it had failed for the present to agree on the type of bonus resolutions to be presented to the convention.

The committee recessed its session to participate in the Legion's annual parade.

Under consideration, it was reported, are resolutions for immediate cash payment of the bonus for partial payments over a period of years beginning immediately, and for leaving the bonus situation as it now stands.

School Is Opened by Presbyterians

Home Mission Group Meeting Here Nightly Through Thursday

The Church School of the Presbyterian Home Missions began auspiciously Monday night when well over 100 sat down to supper served by the women of First Presbyterian church.

After supper the Rev. Thomas Brewster, pastor, conducted a 15-minute worship in the auditorium, after which the various study groups took up their work.

The studies are based on a book entitled "Presbyterian Missions in the Southern United States" by Dr. E. T. Thompson of Union seminary, Richmond, Va. The book is a general historic interest as well as of particular denominational value.

Dr. Thompson takes the reader back to 1683, when Dr. Francis Makemie, a Presbyterian home missionary from Ulster, organized five Presbyterian churches in what is today Somerset county, Maryland, the first of which was old Rehoboth church. The walls of the present structure date back to 1706.

The local school of the Home Missions will continue through Thursday, meeting as follows:

Tuesday at 7 p. m.; Wednesday at 7 p. m.; Thursday at 6:30, when a chili supper will be served.

The week of prayer and self denial for home missions will be observed early in November, according to the Rev. Mr. Brewster.

The Clew of the Forgotten Murder

BY CARLETON KENDRAKE
© 1934 REA Service Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

When DAN BLECKER, publisher of The Blade, learns that CHARLES MORDEN, police reporter, has been mysteriously killed he employs SIDNEY GRIFF, famous criminologist, to solve the murder.

Morden had been investigating the affairs of FRANK R. CATHY, wealthy and prominent, who had threatened to sue The Blade because the newspaper reported Cathy had been arrested. The man arrested was an impostor giving the name of Cathy and recommended by a girl called MARY BRIGGS.

Soon after Morden is found dead some news that Cathy is dead—possibly poisoned.

Morden's fingerprints are found in the apartment of a girl named ALICE LORTON who has reported the disappearance of her roommate, ESTHER ORDAWAY. GRIFF and Blecker set out to visit Alice Lorton.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVII

ALICE LORTON, looking pathetically feminine, helpless and dazed, surveyed the two men from wide, blue eyes.

"The police," she said, "don't seem to pay any attention to it at all. They seem to think that Esther just decided to move out and go some place else, or that she ran away with a boy friend for a—"

"Week-end?" offered Sidney Griff by way of suggestion.

The girl nodded.

"They were rather crude about it," she said.

"They wouldn't be," Griff told her sympathetically.

Alice Lorton raised her eyes to Blecker.

"Your paper, Mr. Blecker," she said, "has been perfectly splendid. They've gone to no end of trouble to find out about it."

"How much of her stuff did she take when she left?" Griff asked.

"Just some of her clothes and personal belongings. I would say not more than one suitcase full, at the most."

"Looks as though she might have gone by plane," Griff suggested, "taking only that amount of baggage."

Alice Lorton's face lit up.

"That might be a clew," she said, "but who would have made her go by plane? Somebody must have forced her to leave."

"Have you any idea what sort of an outfit she was wearing when she left?"

"Yes, I think she was wearing her black dress with the red trimming. She was wearing black shoes and stockings and she had a little black hat—one of the close-fitting kind that pull down over one side of the head. It was trimmed with white."

"She's about 22?"

"I THINK exactly 22," Alice Lorton said. "I think her birthday was just a month or so ago. I know she had a birthday, and I think it was her 22d. It may have been her 23d, but I think she was 22."

"And she's a brunet?"

"Yes. She has black eyes and black hair. She has a windblown bob."

"How tall is she?"

"She's just about my build. We could wear each other's clothes. In fact, she let me wear her clothes lots of the time."

Sidney Griff crossed to the bookcase, picked out several of the books, looked at the names on the fly leaves.

"Is this her signature?" he asked.

Alice Lorton came and looked over his shoulder.

"Yes," she said, "that's it."

Griff glanced meaningfully at Blecker.

"I think," he said, "when they travel by plane they're required to sign a duplicate ticket that has certain clauses in it concerning limitations of liability, the right to ground planes under adverse weather conditions, the excess rate on baggage, and things of that sort. By checking up the signatures on smooth on foundation lotion or cream. Brush your forehead across the surface of some cleansing cream, then dip it in the cream rouge.

Make one streak along the upper edge of each cheek bone and, beginning at the starting point, make another streak downward to form a triangle. Then fill in the triangle. Make sure that there are no harsh looking edges and that the rouge isn't too far in toward the nose.

An ideal way to determine exactly where rouge should go is to look at your face after you have been exercising violently. Where the natural color is then is where artificial color should go.

If you use dry rouge, powder before putting it on; then follow the triangle procedure.

Lipstick, of course, goes on last. Dry your lips with a piece of cleansing tissue, smooth on the lipstick and don't touch it or moisten your lips for at least three minutes. Then, using another piece of tissue, wipe off all the surplus.

separate feeding or oranges

However, if a child feels ill at breakfast, mother might try giving him orange juice at a different time. He might begin to feel better, or he might not. It depends on the child and his condition.

One day at lunch a mother reported to be a very excellent cook had a menu something like this: noodle soup, corn custard, eggs and baked potatoes.

Not a thing wrong with it except that there was a repetition of eggs in the custard and repetition of starches in noodles, corn and potatoes. Too one sided.

Meals cannot be half starch, especially if repeated often, and leave a child feeling one hundred per cent. Starch cells take some splitting, or chemical change in the body. The system is not able usually to handle too big a job of it. Besides when the stomach is gorged with starches, where and when are the other needed foods to have a chance?

Food Idiosyncrasy

Very frequently a child will have what is called "an idiosyncrasy" against certain foods. Eggs may account for that just-not-feeling-so-well condition. Perhaps a seeming head cold, perhaps weariness, or even nausea. Try yolks alone then and see how he is, omitting the whites for awhile.

Others cannot take care of rich chocolate, or even cocoa. The mother can experiment by their removal.

Fried foods are always bad. Try boiling, or roasting, or baking more things if the children have upset stomachs.

I believe it largely to be a matter of simplicity in menu. If a child gets 8 or 10 different dishes for his dinner some of them are almost certain to fight. Variety is an excellent thing but we should remember that he gets 3 meals a day and 21 meals a week. Opportunity to vary the diet without doing it all at once.

Blending rouge too far downward is worse for your beauty than not using it at all. If you keep it well up on the cheek bones, it forms a flattering frame for your eyes and gives you a youthful, healthy look. But if you put it lower than that, you aren't making the most of your eyes and your face will have a rather old, dragged-down appearance.

When you have cleaned your face the outgoing planes, we might find out if she took passage under an assumed name, and we've got a pretty fair description of her clothes."

Blecker pulled out a notebook and made a notation.

"How much," asked Griff abruptly, "were you paying for the apartment?"

"I don't know," she said slowly, "how much Esther was paying for it. Esther was the one who had the dealings with the landlord. She paid him. I paid her what she said my share amounted to."

"How much did she say your share amounted to?"

"Twenty dollars a month," Alice Lorton said in a low voice.

GRIFF looked about the apartment.

"You didn't get this apartment for any $40 a month," he told her. "I know it," she said. "That is, I suspected it. But Esther always told me it was none of my business; that she made the business arrangements and if she could get the apartment cheap I didn't have to worry about it."

"You mean she knew the landlord personally . . . that is, there was some reason why the landlord made her a reduced rate?"

"Oh, no," Alice Lorton said hastily. "I don't think there was anything like that. I don't think she even knew the landlord."

"You paid her the $20 every month?"

"Yes. Once or twice I had to skip a month, but Esther carried me. She seems to have plenty of money."

"You don't know what she was doing?"

"No, she said she was looking for employment."

"Who's the landlord?"

"The Lippman Realty Co. have charge of the apartments. There isn't a manager in the building. I don't know their address. I remember hearing Esther say that she made checks to the Lippman Realty Co."

"Do you mind," asked Sidney Griff, "if I look around?"

"Oh no," she said anxiously. "I want you to. You know, I can't help but feel something awful has happened to Esther. I feel that she went away, but she went away because of some cloud, some horrible misunderstanding. Perhaps she was forced to accompany someone."

"How about men friends?" asked Griff.

"She had one or two. I don't know their names. That was one understanding we had about my friends. Whenever I had a boy friend coming to the apartment to see me, I would tell Esther. Whenever she had a young man coming to see her, I'd leave. That was one of the arrangements that Esther insisted on."

GRIFF nodded and stood for a moment with his eyes closed, his right hand stretched out in front of him, the fingers moving in that peculiar groping, stroking motion.

"I see," he said at length. He walked about the apartment, which consisted of a sitting room, a bedroom and a bath.

Griff looked the place over thoroughly.

"You think she took a photograph album?"

"Yes, I think so. I know—she had one and now I can't find it."

"You've looked?"

"Yes, of course. The newspaper wanted a picture. Even the police asked for that, although they seemed to think it was just a joke of some kind—I mean about her saying."

"Her mail came here to the apartment?" Griff asked.

"Oh yes."

"You're certain of that?"

"Of course. This is where she lived; why wouldn't her mail come here?"

"I'm asking you if you're certain," Griff said.

"Why, yes. I've brought her up mail quite a few times when I've been coming in and have looked in the mail box."

"Any idea who her mail came from?"

"N-n-n-o, I can't say that I have. It seems to me there have been business letters—that is, letters with printed return addresses on the envelopes. I haven't noticed."

"Not just circular advertising letters?"

"No," she said, "first-class mail—letters that came in crisp envelopes."

SOUTH IS URGED

largement project near Marion, Clarendon county.

This trip to the levee closed a busy day, spent mostly in Memphis, where the secretary arrived on his first inspection trip down the Mississippi river. Monday night he and his party were enroute to Helena, which the secretary expects to visit Tuesday, before continuing to Arkansas City from where he will travel by automobile through the Boonville Basin, south center of the flood control plan since 1928 to Monroe, La. His journey down the river will end at New Orleans.

Frankly and without equivocation he took up the matter of the proposed Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Waterway treaty with Canada, which has encountered strenuous opposition in the South.

"I understand that in the South there has been opposition, but I insure that opposition is misguided," the secretary said.

By way of prefacing his detailed discussion of the St. Lawrence waterway project first he set forth the contention of the oppositionists that the treaty, by limiting diversion of water from Lake Michigan, would affect adversely the flow in the Illinois river and thus interfere with navigation on the Mississippi. Then he answered this argument by pointing out that the treaty would in effect merely reaffirm a decision of the United States Supreme Court in a suit instituted to prevent diversion of water from the Chicago through a drainage canal in the Illinois river. Investigation by the War Department has proved, he said, that the St. Lawrence waterway would not be a menace to Mississippi river development and the St. Lawrence waterway project to be viewed alike from a national and not from any local standpoint. Secretary Dern said supporters of both should stand together. Together, they make up a great national program, he said.

Feasibility of inland waterways has been established, but even a 10-year trial cannot be deemed sufficient so long as no satisfactory water-rail-height rate structure has been worked out, Secretary Dern said.

Many A Cold Caused By Infected Sinuses

Infection of the sinuses in children is much more common than you might think.

Many a case which you may believe to be merely a bad cold is such an infection. Some coughs and colds that are not explainable for other reasons are due to chronic infection of a sinus.

This condition is dangerous to the health of the body generally, because the germs are picked up and circulated to other parts of the body. Cases of heart disease, rheumatism, inflammation of the kidneys and other organs also may result from an infection of a sinus.

Constant slight fever and irritation from the infection may interfere with appetite and make the child lackadaisical so that it refuses to play or get the proper amounts of exercise and rest.

For these reasons any persistent infection in the nose and throat should have accurate diagnosis and then competent treatment. Accuracy of diagnosis may be had by means of an X-ray picture which will show a cloudiness and blackness of the sinuses, indicating the need for special care.

It is possible for the doctor to look into the nose and actually see the infected material coming out of the openings of the sinuses into the nose.

Whenever there is infection, the first step is to let it out. It is hard to get the infected material out of the sinuses, but suction devices have been developed which will achieve the result without serious pain.

Solutions of various drugs may be used to shrink the membranes of the nose and in that way allow the fluid to flow more easily out of the sinuses.

There are a few exceedingly helpful things which the mother can do at home. There are syringes which help to draw out the secretions. There is even a simple device which can be attached to a water faucet and create air suction by flowing of the water.

After the infection has been drawn out, a bland oil is applied in the nose to keep the tissues quiescent until the next treatment.

In severe cases, the child should always be kept in bed. It should be given an adequate diet containing plenty of fresh vegetables and other foods supplying the important vitamins.

In the most severe cases of sinus infection, vaccines are sometimes injected to build up resistance.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Weak Stomach; Needs Simple Meals.

Children, as a rule, get so much exercise that they can take pretty good care of a mixture of foods.

But there is no question about the strain on stomach when meals are either too one sided or too "mixed." And the new agitation of food combinations may solve the problem of the child with the so-called weak stomach.

When research makes up its mind, for instance, about mixing orange juice and milk at the same meal, all of us will be thankful. That there are times they don't mix well seems to be a fact. But how do we know that the blend (or the reverse) does not depend somewhat on the chemical contents of other foods in the stomach at the time?

Dr. Frederic H. Bartlett, famous pediatrician, advises that infants and young children use orange juice and milk together, better when milk is pasteurized or boiled. But as to older children, many of them on raw milk, it would be better to have the matter settled once and for all.

Separate Feeding or Oranges

However, if a child feels ill at breakfast, mother might try giving him orange juice at a different time. He might begin to feel better, or he might not. It depends on the child and his condition.

One day at lunch a mother reported to be a very excellent cook had a menu something like this: noodle soup, corn custard, eggs and baked potatoes.

Not a thing wrong with it except that there was a repetition of eggs in the custard and repetition of starches in noodles, corn and potatoes. Too one sided.

Meals cannot be half starch, especially if repeated often, and leave a child feeling one hundred per cent. Starch cells take some splitting, or chemical change in the body. The system is not able usually to handle too big a job of it. Besides when the stomach is gorged with starches, where and when are the other needed foods to have a chance?

Food Idiosyncrasy

Very frequently a child will have what is called "an idiosyncrasy" against certain foods. Eggs may account for that just-not-feeling-so-well condition. Perhaps a seeming head cold, perhaps weariness, or even nausea. Try yolks alone then and see how he is, omitting the whites for awhile.

Others cannot take care of rich chocolate, or even cocoa. The mother can experiment by their removal.

Fried foods are always bad. Try boiling, or roasting, or baking more things if the children have upset stomachs.

I believe it largely to be a matter of simplicity in menu. If a child gets 8 or 10 different dishes for his dinner some of them are almost certain to fight. Variety is an excellent thing but we should remember that he gets 3 meals a day and 21 meals a week. Opportunity to vary the diet without doing it all at once.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

Your Beauty Is Involved in Triangle.

Blending rouge too far downward is worse for your beauty than not using it at all. If you keep it well up on the cheek bones, it forms a flattering frame for your eyes and gives you a youthful, healthy look. But if you put it lower than that, you aren't making the most of your eyes and your face will have a rather old, dragged-down appearance.

She Was a Pirate—But Always a Lady
—Here's a Gay Novel About a Feminine Corsair

If tales of pirates bold excite your fancy, reflect upon the fact that there was once a lady pirate—a gallant wench who sank ships, slit throats, and made a holy terror out of herself generally, but who never forgot that a girl will get herself talked about if she lets the boys take undue liberties.

This dashing female is the heroine of "Pirate Wench," a sprightly novel by Frank Shay. She was born the daughter of an English tavern mistress, she ran away in her teens to don men's clothing and go soldiering in the Low Countries, and she wound up a she terror of the Spanish Main; indeed, before she got through she sacked the budding town of New Orleans.

There really was such a lady, says Mr. Shay. She must have been a lulu; at any rate, her fictionalized portrait is a gaudy one, although one is just a trifle astonished to find her so insistent on preserving, through all the looting and killing, her own rationally invariability.

It is little like finding a Capone muscle man priding himself on his refusal to swear.

Published by Ivys Washburn, Inc., the book sells for $2.50.

Mercy

The quality of mercy is not strained, It droppeth as the gentle rain from heaven Upon the place beneath: it is twice blest;

It blesseth him that gives and him that takes: 'Tis mightiest in the mightiest; it becomes

The throned monarch better than his crown: His scepter shows the force of temporal power,

The attribute to awe and majesty, Wherein doth sit the dread and fear of kings,

It is an attribute to God himself, And earthly power doth then show likest God's

The Junior Endeavor Society enjoyed a delightful pre-Halloween party at the First Presbyterian church Friday night. Halloween reminders were very much in evidence in the decorations and games and spooky costumes. About 60 including members and their guests enjoyed the evening and delicious refreshments.

Mrs. Glen Williams and little son, Glen, spent the week end with relatives in Little Rock.

McRae Lemley of the Magnolia A. & M. college spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lemley.

The Presbyterian church opened Home Mission Study week with a tempting dinner and a splendid attendance Monday evening at 6:30 at the church. The dinner was served in the Sunday school annex on long tables decorated with fall flowers.

Following the dinner a brief worship period was conducted by Dr. Brewster in the main auditorium after which the different classes went to their departments for the Mission Study period. Mrs. Harry Lemley presented the lesson to the ladies of the church, giving a review of the first Presbyterian churches established in the colonies, telling of the hardships of the missionaries, Mrs. Lemley was very ably assisted in her instructive and pleasing program by Mrs. Bennie Shipp, Mrs. Eugene White and Mrs. Ruffin White.

On Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock the Presbyterian church of the anti-ballum and the modern South will be discussed under the leadership of Mrs. Finley Ward, with the devotion by Mrs. L. A. Foster.

Circle No. 5 of the W. M. S. of the First Baptist church held their Oct. meeting at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Wallace R. Rogers on South Elm Street with Mrs. W. P. Agee and Mrs. H. A. Fisk as associate hostesses. The meeting opened with the hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name," followed by prayer by Mrs. Agee. Mrs. Hugh Smith, Circle leader presided over the business period. The Mission manual, "Why and How," was reviewed by the Mission Study leader Mrs. W. P. Agee assisted by Mrs. Alton Honeycutt and Mrs. Earl Wolfe. Two new members were added to the roll, Mrs. Troy Greenleaf and Mrs. T. A. Womble. Sixteen members were present. The hostesses

This Is The ENJOYABLE LAXATIVE

Feen-a-mint, the delicious mint chewing gum laxative, gives you no harsh, upsetting action, no strain, no aftereffect discomfort. It tastes just like your favorite gum. The pleasant, easy action of Feen-a-mint is due to the fact that you CHEW it. Saliva juices mix with it like they do with your food, and so it goes into the system gradually. Thus no laxative mass hits your system suddenly to upset its delicate balance. Feen-a-mint is ideal for children, but thoroughly positive for adults. Doctors prescribe the laxative in Feen-a-mint. It is for pleasant correction without upset to diet or appetite. Delay in danger zone, get back on schedule and stay there with delicious Feen-a-mint. At drug stores, 15c and 25c.

El Dorado Greets Rowe on Tuesday

Lon Warneke to Oppose "Schoolboy" in Major League Exhibition

EL DORADO, Ark.—The greatest array of major league baseball talent ever to show in El Dorado, with possibly one exception, was scheduled to be in uniform at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday at Rowland Field, in an all-star game to feature the celebration of Homecoming Day in honor of "Schoolboy" Rowe.

This game is expected to attract the largest crowd that has ever packed Rowland Field. More than 1,000 box seats already have been sold, while the demand for grandstand seats is meeting the expectations of the promoters. The contest will follow the noon day parade headed by a 200-piece high school band, Governor Futrell and other state officials.

Among the major league performers who are certain to see action will be "Schoolboy" Rowe, pitching for one of the teams, and Lon Warneke of Chicago Cubs, hurling for the other; Travis Jackson of the Giants; El Dorado's own Bing Hula, second baseman of the Cleveland Indians; Dab Williams of the Philadelphia Athletics, and perhaps several others.

Several players from the East Dixie League also will be in the line-up. Among these will be George Harper, El Dorado manager; Doodle Harper, who played with El Dorado part of the last season and then went to Greenville where he became a favorite with the fans; Joe Grenade and other well known local stars.

George (Baby Face) Nelson of the imposing roster of nationally notorious public enemies.

In the 12-month period guns of peace officers brought death among others, to:

John Dillinger, hoodlum slain here three months ago.

Jack Klutas, collegiate gang leader affiliated with the Dillinger mob, slain January 6.

Herbert Youngblood, negro criminal who escaped jail with Dillinger, slain at Port Huron, Mich., March 16.

Eugene Green, Dillinger mobster, killed in St. Paul, April 11.

Tommy Carroll, another of the Dillinger mob, shot to death at Waterloo, Ia., June 7.

Homer Van Meter, slain in St. Paul, August 22.

Charles Mackley, Dillinger mobster, fatally wounded a few weeks ago in an attempt to escape the Ohio prison.

Makley's running mate, Harry Pierpont, was electrocuted in Ohio, October 7.

Others Rounded Up

In addition to death dealt out as a reward for crime, federal and police rounded the majority of other notorious gangs behind bars and two killed themselves.

Verne Sankey, kidnaper and slayer captured here, killed himself in a South Dakota prison; Willie Shankey, Teuhp gangster, hanged himself in a St. Paul jail here awaiting a kidnap trial.

Clyde Barrow, Southwestern desperado, slain in police ambush near Black Lake, La., May 23. His girl friend, Bonnie Parker, was killed with him.

Verne Miller, Northwestern sheriff who turned desperado, was found, his body beaten and stabbed, outside Detroit, but police regarded the death as one of intangar warfare.

Gordon Alcorn, another Northwestern criminal, who was a running mate of Miller, was captured and jailed.

The Teuhp gang was rounded up and its leader, Roger, along with three others, went to an Illinois prison for kidnaping John Factor.

The George (Machine Gun) Kelly gang met its fate behind prison bars.

The supreme court Monday issued the following order:

"Appellant Knowlton as mayor of Little Rock, Arkansas is hereby mandatorily directed to immediately call an election in all voting precincts in the city of Little Rock to be held on a certain day not earlier than 30 days from this date and not later than November 27, 1934, as directed in the writ of mandamus issued by the Circuit Court in this cause."

The election will be called on the first petition filed with Mayor Knowlton and the following names will be submitted as candidates for the seven members of a chartered committee to draft a proposed charter for the city manager plan:

Gordon N. Campbell, Dr. A. W. Strauss, Charles Mehaffy, Charles Dick, John A. Sherrill, Ed J. McKinley Sr., and George Muswick.

Roscoe Turner and Clyde Pangborn, Americans among the leaders in the air derby, landed at Koepong, north of the Timor sea, at 2:45 a. m. G. M. T., after a flight from Singapore. They took to the air again at 3 a. m.

Parmentier and Moll, before leaving Port Darwin, said they were enjoying their trip thoroughly. They regarded it an adventure which was proving the commercial value of their plane, an American Douglas. It was pointed out that no alterations had been made in the craft to prepare it for the race.

In addition to the pilots, it was carried a cargo, 2,000 letters and three passengers. The passengers are Thea Rasche, German aviatrix, Peter Gilles of The Hague and R. G. Dominie of Brazil.

Though Scott's DeHavilland ship plunged into Darwin on one engine, it covered the distance from England in two days, four hours and 33 minutes, less than half the old record of over six days and hardly one-fifth the boat time between England and "down under."

Judge and clerks representing 23 precincts in Ashley county testified Monday, along with 13 members of the county Democratic Committee.

Several of the witnesses said they had retained one of the poll books and tally sheet, which they said had been the county's custom. The poll books were offered as exhibits.

Other witnesses gave precinct figures which they said they had copied on blank ballots after the votes were counted. Several witnesses testified to precinct totals from memory.

Cross-examination revealed that some of the judges and clerks who signed affidavits as to the vote in their precincts also had signed other papers saying they had voted for Kitchens.

Members of the Democratic Committee told the court that action of the committee in certifying the vote was unanimous. Several committeemen were unable to remember whether the votes were read by precincts at the meeting, while others testified only the total vote for each candidate was announced.

Several witnesses Monday demanded payment before they would consent to testify. Kitchens settled the difficulty by announcing he was prepared to pay all witnesses who demanded immediate payment.

Judge Henry explained that the plaintiff had not been required to post a cost bond and that a cost judgment would be rendered at the close of the trial. Several witnesses demanded their money and were paid promptly.

Stop Chills and Fever!

Rid Your System of Malaria!

Shivering with chills one moment and burning with fever the next—that's one of the effects of Malaria. Unless checked, the disease will do serious harm to your health. Malaria, a blood infection, calls for two things: First, destroying the infection in the blood. Second, building up the blood to overcome the effects of the disease and to fortify against further attack.

Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic supplies both these effects. It contains tasteless quinine, which kills the infection in the blood, and iron, which enriches and builds up the blood. Chills and fever soon stop and you are restored to health and comfort. For half a century, Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic has been sure relief for Malaria. It is just as useful, too, as a general tonic for old and young. Pleasant to take and absolutely harmless. Safe to give children. Get a bottle at any drug store. Now two sizes—50c and $1. The $1 size contains 2½ times as much as the 50c size and gives you 25% more for your money.
